

ABSTRACT

A clock signal aligned relative to an edge of a strobe signal received from a transmitting device is generated. One or more data signals received from the transmitting device are latched using the clock signal.